- V. Director’s Report – Director Harkness presented the Director’s report. Each board member received a copy of the new winter guide featuring the library system wide program Food & the Soul of America, that will be running from January until April 2026. Every branch will hold events featuring award winning culinary authors, chefs and interesting culinary based activities honoring the 250th Anniversary of the United States of America through food. He invited every board member to spread the word and invite family and friends to the events across the branches. He also pointed out the information in the guide on the upcoming Columbus Children’s Book Festival in May.

Both the Marion County Public Library and the Columbus Public Library have received state dollars to effectuate repairs to those buildings. Director Harkness asked board members to thank their local state congress representatives if they see them, for voting on behalf of the CVL. While laws trying to hold librarians responsible for materials checked out by children that some might not like failed last year by a narrow margin, these same laws will be up for a vote again this year at the state level. Director Harkness will keep the board informed of any progress regarding these worrisome law proposals.

The Stewart County Library Board has decided to postpone the request for the state renovation grant for another year as they work on raising the funds needed for the requested local match. The site that CVL was looking at for the New North Columbus Public Library is no longer a viable option. The CVL will need to search for a different location.

Director Harkness reminded everyone about the system wide library board training on Saturday, January 31, 2026. He is happy that some 30 plus library board members and staff have signed up for this training. The Georgia Public Library Service Magazine featured the Columbus Public Library’s Children’s Department prominently in its Fall issue. There are photos featuring several library board members and staff with their families enjoying the library. The new CVL Strategic Plans should be completed by July 2026.

Director Harkness went over the latest CVL Dashboard. Active cardholders have gone down slightly. Visitors are also slightly down, but e-material circulation and program attendance are up. Computer use continues to go up. The two book mobile drivers have resigned, and new ones have been hired. The book mobiles are being readied to be repainted and wrapped. Aflac has issued a grant for their sponsored book mobile's painting and rewrapping.

Director Harkness wished to inform the board that the protestor who had caused a commotion in August came back to the Columbus Public Library on December 20th with another individual who decided to do a 1st amendment audit. They disrupted an event being held in one of the public meeting rooms where a group was handing out gifts to foster children, and it led to a confrontation between them and some people from the group. Director Harkness believes the CPL staff did a respectable job containing the situation, but he is consulting with the MCSD Attorney about the incident and is awaiting further instruction. Director Harkness will keep the board apprised of the situation.
