

Programming is offered as a library resource to provide information, education, and recreation for library users and the community. It may utilize library staff, books, library and community resources, resource people, displays, and media presentations. In addition to library initiated programming and displays, the library may choose to co-sponsor programs and displays with the Friends of the Library, the Muscogee County Library Foundation and with other agencies, organizations, or educational institutions.

Library staff on the basis of interest and needs of library users and the community selects topics for programming and displays. The library shall determine the content of any displays placed anywhere in the building or on the grounds, excluding short-term displays placed in the library's public meeting rooms by outside groups. Library programs and displays will not exclude topics, materials, speakers, media, and other resources just because these might be controversial. Topics shall be viewpoint neutral; that is, more than one view will be presented, whenever practicable.

Library staff members will do presentations for the community and conduct tours of library buildings.

Reviewed and approved by the Chattahoochee Valley Libraries Board on October 21, 2010